

Patent Claims

Method for detecting the maximum quantity of possible positions of an exchangeable nosepiece or slide in a microscope system, wherein, starting from an initial position which corresponds to a first position, the maximum position is adjusted, wherein this maximum position is compared to a position registered in a memory and the results of the comparison are stored.